

THE ERICH S. GRUEN PRIZE

The prize for the best graduate research paper on multiculturalism in the ancient Mediterranean.

DEADLINE: OCTOBER 6, 2023

To learn more,
scan the QR code
below or visit:

[classicalstudies.org/awards
-and-fellowships](https://classicalstudies.org/awards-and-fellowships)

ABOUT THE PRIZE

On behalf of the Society for Classical Studies (SCS), the Erich S. Gruen Prize Committee invites all graduate students in North America to enter the fourth annual competition for the best graduate research paper on multiculturalism in the ancient Mediterranean. This year the prize will be a cash award of $1,000.

The prize is intended to honor Erich S. Gruen, renowned ancient historian and long-time Gladys Rehard Wood Professor of History and Classics at the University of California, Berkeley.

We invite high-quality papers treating any aspect of race, ethnicity, or cultural exchange as it pertains to the ancient Mediterranean by any student currently enrolled in a North American graduate program, regardless of citizenship or immigration status. A Prize Committee has been charged with selecting the most original and well-argued research paper to receive a cash award and public recognition by SCS. Membership in SCS and/or attendance at the annual meeting are not expected or required of any applicant.