Payment of dues is requested by December 31, 2009, to ensure an uninterrupted listing in the online Directory of Members and to permit continued access to the members only section of the APA web site. Before submitting your dues payment, please turn over the dues invoice and respond to the survey of members’ fields of interest that has been prepared by the Committee on Research. The Committee’s goal is to make it possible for members... to use the APA's online Directory of Members to find other classicists working in areas of common interest.

Publications

By action of the Board of Directors, APA members will receive printed versions of three Association publications (TAPA, the Newsletter, and Amphora) only on request. The Board has taken this action in order to achieve both financial and environmental savings. In the upper left-hand corner of the invoice you will find check boxes you may use to request copies of these publications in the mail. The Newsletter and Amphora will continue to appear on the APA web site; TAPA will continue to be available to APA members via Project MUSE (click on the “Members Only” link on the main page of our web site).

Communication with Members

If you do not regularly receive e-mails from my office, the APA probably does not have your current e-mail address in the membership records that the Johns Hopkins University Press maintains for us. If you have not provided that address, I urge you to do so either by noting it when you pay your dues or by sending an e-mail to the Press at jrnlcirc@mail.press.jhu.edu. The Board of Directors has instructed me, first of all, not to share members’ e-mail addresses with any other organization or individual, and, second, to make communications with the entire membership as brief and as infrequent as possible. By providing your e-mail address to us, you will be sure of receiving important Association announcements.

In accordance with a policy established by the Board of Directors, the Association does not publish the numerical tabulation of the election in the Newsletter or on the web site. The information is available, however, and any member may request the tabulation by making a written request to the Executive Director at the Association’s office.

1,183 members (over a third of the membership) cast a ballot in at least one of the above elections. This is by far the largest number of members participating in an election in this decade. We received a number of useful comments about the online procedure used this year and will make several changes next year to make the balloting process easier.

Improvements to APh Online

All L'Année philologique records compiled by the APA's Database of Classical Bibliography project have now been posted on the APh Online web site. In addition, in September the site added records from Volume 78. APh Online now contains all L'Année data from 1924.
through 2007.

Several offices (including the American Office) that compile APh data are now posting interim records, i.e., the latest available records from the office prior to their publication. A list of the items posted can be found at www.annee-philologique.com/aph/aph.cgi?FILE=notices_provisoires.htm.

We are very grateful to the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation which funded a planning grant in 2008 to consider both an improved design for the user interface of APh Online and better links of L'Année records to both ancient and modern texts mentioned in those records. In response to the final report on this grant prepared by project director and APh Online Editor Eric Rebillard, the SIBC has commissioned a new user interface and improved links to modern works online. These features will be available in early 2010. In addition, Prof. Rebillard hopes to begin work next year on creating links to online versions of ancient texts.

Announcement of Seminar at Anaheim Meeting

The Program Committee has approved a proposal to offer a seminar at the 2010 Annual Meeting in Anaheim. Full details of this session appear below. Seminars are intended to provide an opportunity for extensive discussion of the papers to be presented. To this end attendance at the seminars will be limited, and the speakers in these sessions have been asked to make their papers available by November so that registrants who attend the sessions can read them in advance. Each will present only a brief summary of his or her paper at the session itself.

To ensure the success of these sessions, the Program Committee requests the following commitments from annual meeting registrants interested in attending a seminar.

1. Ask the Seminar Leader via e-mail to reserve a place for you at the session. The organizer’s e-mail address follows his name in the descriptions below.

2. Read each of the seminar papers in advance of the meeting. Registrants whose requests to participate are accepted will receive copies of the seminar papers after November 15, 2009.

3. Attend the entire 3-hour session in Anaheim. The Program Committee feels strongly that the success of the seminars will depend in large part on the willingness of all participants to participate actively for the entire session. In addition, persons accepted for attendance at a seminar may be taking the place of another registrant who wished to attend the session. There will be a brief break scheduled about halfway through each session.

Below is the list of speakers and topics for the seminar as well as a brief summary of the session prepared by the organizer:

Thursday, January 8, 2010, 1:30-4:30 p.m.

The Text of Propertius

Organizer: Richard Tarrant (tarrant@fas.harvard.edu)

The text of Propertius has long been a site of controversy regarding the nature of Propertius’ poetry. Did he cultivate a highly idiosyncratic style, or are the obscurities and discontinuities in the transmitted text the result of a corrupt manuscript tradition? The debate has intensified with the appearance of Stephen Heyworth’s OCT text, which even its editor concedes may be considered radical. With Heyworth’s edition as a point of departure, the seminar re-examines the suppositions underlying recent Propertian textual scholarship and explores connections between textual and literary criticism that are especially close in the case of this author. After each of the four speakers presents a brief summary of his paper, the discussion will begin with responses from Alison Keith (University of Toronto) and Stephen Heyworth (Oxford University).

Richard F. Thomas, Harvard University, An Epigrammatic Elegist?

The annual meeting of the American Council of Learned Societies took place on May 7-9 at the Sheraton Society Hill Hotel in Philadelphia and was attended by about 250 delegates and guests, including two representatives of the APA, Adam Blistein and Helen F. North (substituting for Jenny Strauss Clay). The program traditionally followed at this meeting allows for little variation. It always includes a meeting of the Delegates with a report on the ACLS Fellowship Program, a report by the President, a luncheon speech by an eminent humanist, and the Charles Homer Haskins Prize Lecture, in some ways the climax of the meeting.

Of particular interest this year was the account of the struggle to maintain the fellowship program without disastrous cuts. In fact there has been only a modest reduction in the number of fellowships awarded for 2008-9 (57 as compared with 65 in the previous year). In the 2008-9 competition there were 32 applicants listed as Classicists, of whom three were successful. (In 2007-8 the numbers were 33 and 5.)

The luncheon speaker was Don M. Randle, President of the Mellon Foundation since 2006, who served before that as President of the University of Chicago for six years, having taught musicology at Cornell and performed in many administrative positions there for 32 years. (He challenged anyone in his audience to specialize in a more obscure subject than his own: Spanish liturgical music of the middle ages and renaissance; there seemed to be no rivals.) Dr. Randel devoted his brief and eloquent talk to an appeal for support for the NEH, a topic that recurred frequently in the course of discussions during the day, where it was repeatedly pointed out that support for the National Endowment for the Arts made the plight of the humanities particularly appalling.

The presentation of the Haskins Award is traditionally followed by a lecture in which the recipient describes his life of learning. On this occasion the award went to William Labov, Professor of Linguistics and Director of the Linguistics Laboratory at the University of Pennsylvania, who broke with the tradition and instead chose to give a fascinating lecture on linguistic change, which employed recordings of the pronunciation of certain sounds by a succession of speakers chosen from locations throughout the United States, who were interviewed about the relation between their pronunciation and that of others with whom they conversed. Professor Labov’s own educational background was only briefly sketched, but it was itself of considerable interest, involving as it did a change of vocations which took him to linguistics. Some of us would have enjoyed learning more about this transition in the life of learning..

REPORT OF REPRESENTATIVE TO ACL

The 2009 ACL Institute took place from June 25-28, 2009 at Loyola Marymount University in Los Angeles. There was a pre-institute excursion to the Los Angeles County Museum of Art, where participants were able to view the museum’s exhibit on “Pompeii and the Roman Villa: Art and Culture around the Bay of Naples.”

Pre-Institute Workshops on June 25-6 provided information on all levels of Latin for a wide variety of teacher interests, from “Speaking and Writing in Latin” to “Using Digital Images, Google Earth, and Digital Cameras to Engage Students in the Latin Classrooms.” In various sessions, teachers heard about new pedagogical materials, both in print and online. For example, Lee Butterman gave a demonstration of NoDictionaries.com, a website that can gloss Latin texts. There were papers on canonical authors (Vergil, Horace) and non-traditional readings (Vulgate Latin, Medieval Latin). A highlight of the Institute was a trip to the Getty Villa, and those who wanted to practice their Latin speaking and listening skills accompanied Prof. Stephen Berard on the Iter Gettianum.

The plenary session on “Current Issues for Latin Teachers” offered ample opportunity for teachers to reflect on the quid and quomodo of their profession. The American Classical League and the American Philological Association Joint Task Force on Teacher Training and Certification offered a draft of “Standards for Latin Teacher Training and Certification” for perusal and comment. Prof. Mary Pendergraft gave an update on the AP program and the decision to replace the Vergil and Latin Literature syllabi with a single Vergil-Caesar syllabus. This decision arose out of the wishes expressed by both college and secondary school teachers: to have students understand grammar from a shared vocabulary, to give teachers fewer lines of text to cover, and to offer greater opportunities for success and sound prose reading skills. The new curriculum would not be ready until 2012 or later; a decision was tentatively scheduled for November 2009 on selection of specific texts and passages. In a lighter plenary session, the audience had the privilege of viewing their colleagues in a fashion show of “1000 Years of Roman Costume,” which began with simply-clad Republicans and ended with Justinian bedecked with gold and jewels.

At the ACL council meeting, delegates learned that the attendance at the current Institute was 323, a good showing considering that most members live in the East. Junior Classical League enrollments stood at a healthy 1,300. Projected ACL membership receipts for 2009-10 were $150,000.00. The delegates also discussed revisions to the ACL constitution in keeping with the current practices of the organization. The Institute ended with singing of old and new favorites accompanied by Stan Farrell at the piano.

CSWMG Journals Report

[Editor’s Note: The data underlying this report will be published on the APA web site: http://www.apaclassics.org/profmt/profmatters.html]

As part of its ongoing mission, the CSWMG produces a report every three years on journal publications and publication practices, with particular attention to differences along lines of gender and of race/ethnicity. This report is based on surveys sent to 19 journals in the field of Classics each year from 2004 – 2006. In 2004, 16 journals responded; in 2005, 12; and in 2006, 15. This gives us an average response rate of 75.4%.

We should note at the outset that the field as a whole has not achieved gender parity in employment. According to the last report on the Departmental Census, women make up roughly 36% of FTE’s teaching Classics in North America. Of tenured college and university professors, the percentage is even lower, roughly 29%. This remains true after several decades, although women are currently earning 43% of all PhD’s in the field.

The percentage of racial and ethnic minorities in the field lags far behind their respective ratios in the populace at large. In the last Departmental Census Report, all racial and ethnic minorities together make up only 3.1% of the employed faculty in the field of Classics.

The following figures concerning journal submissions and acceptances are based on 3-year averages for all journals in the field. Although there is some variation year to year, there are no clearly discernible trends over the 3-year period. On the whole, we believe that the 3-year averages present a realistic picture of the state of publication in the field. It is worth noting, however, that the raw data on the gender of article authors are determined by journal editors’ assessment of their given names, since no census information is collected directly from authors themselves. This means that some article submissions cannot be categorized because their authors only provide first initials or have names which are not easily understood as male or female. It also opens up the possibility that journal editors may have categorized certain names incorrectly. Finally, it means that journal submissions by minority authors cannot be determined.

Given their representation on classics faculties, the number of journal submissions by women in the field is not surprising. In the years 2004 – 6, on average, 34.5% of articles submitted to journals were by women. Another 1% were by authors whose gender could not be determined. On the whole, then, women appear to be submitting articles for publication at about the same rate as men.

When we turn to acceptance, women are more successful than men. Articles by women were accepted at a rate of 38%; only 23% of articles by men were accepted. As a result, women authored 46% of all published articles during the period surveyed, a number considerably higher than their percentage on Classics faculties. The cause for this higher rate of acceptance is not clear.

Editorial boards and referees show women at slightly higher percentages than their presence in the profession as a whole. Women made up 39% of all referees in the 3-year period, and 40% of journal editorial boards. Perhaps most striking is the number of women who served as editor-in-chief: over a 3-year average women made up 47% of editors-in-chief. It does not appear, then, that there is discrimination against women when it comes to service on editorial boards or as referees.

A total of 1.5% of members on editorial boards were members of racial or minority groups, and no journals had a minority member as editor-in-chief.

The Journals survey also asks journals to report on their review process. Of the journals surveyed over a 3-year period, 31 out of 43 responses (65%) indicated that they required anonymous submission, 5 (11.6%) preferred it, and 7 (16%) had no precisely defined policy.

For referees, the picture is a bit clearer. Nearly all (41 out of 43 responses, or 95%) required anonymous referees, 1 preferred it, and 1 left it to the author’s request.

Most journals used two or more referees for each submission. Again, of the 43 responses over 3 years surveyed, 34 (79%) indicated that they used two referees, with another 4 (9%) using 3. Only 6 (14%) relied on only one.

The authors of this report would like to thank Heidi Broome-Raines of Brown University for compiling the statistics from the journals surveys.

Report of the 2009 Minority Scholar

My time with the six-week Classical Summer School Program at the American Academy in Rome was a delightfully enriching experience that I will treasure forever. It was an honor to be among some of the brightest minds in Classics, from teachers to graduate students to full professors. The course was more than an in-depth focus on the archaeological, historical, and epigraphic world of the ancient Romans. It was also an opportunity to meet with other classicists with varied fields of interest, who helped enhance my understanding of the ancient Roman world. We began with the foundation of Rome and the Etruscan influence, visiting many sites such as the huts of Romulus, and places in Etruria. We learned of the various types of masonry employed in Roman construction, such as ashlar, tufa, and the multiple forms of marble. We trekked through all kinds of difficult terrain, with the hot sun blazing, yet we all woke up each morning with a surplus amount of energy excited to learn what new wonders were awaiting us.

As an introduction to the complex society of the Ancient Romans, I could not have asked for a more qualified Director and Assistant than Dr. Greg Bucher and Scott Craver. They both elevated my interest and fascination with the Roman world beyond what I could have imagined. Having had only a general knowledge of Roman history, and even less of its archaeological background, I was stimulated each day by the absorbing readings and the lectures of the leaders, and visiting Professors. Some guest-lecturers would spend an entire day with us going over many facets of the intricate details of a site or monument, such as Dr. Christine Clark, Dr. Eleanor Leach, Dr. Larissa Bonfante, and Dr. Joanne Spurza, who lectured on the enormous site of Ostia, while we were on the site. Often, I felt that I was in a dream, gazing upon sites that I knew well from photographs and diagrams. Yet, I never imagined that I would be facing them in all their majesty, such as the Pantheon, the Ara Pacis, the Colosseum, and the Arch of Constantine.

It was a thrill to be among a group of people who were always eager and ready at such an early hour every morning to explore and investigate a new site or museum every day. We would consistently be at the bus stop several minutes early in anticipation of visiting the Vatican for the first time, or knowing we were going to enter the Round Temple. Many times, we would discover the very morning of visiting a museum or site that we were being granted access to parts of a site or of a museum not normally open to the general public. Our tessera would seem to magically grant us access to these hidden spaces. It was a special treat to learn that some of these new places opened to us were not only a first for us, but a first for our two leaders as well.

Every couple of weeks we would have a practice autoptic exam in preparation for the final. The practice exams would consist of placing us in an unknown archaeological site, splitting us up into smaller groups assigned to various parts of the site, and called upon to decipher its mysteries. Given the knowledge we acquired from the lectures on other sites, we could understand how each room or space was utilized. For example, a large circular structure with seating was likely to be an amphitheatre, or a room with an underground heating system could be part of a bath or pool. More often, there was very
eye to glean enough information; so, we would have to work with what we did know. If there is evidence of marble tiling we could assess the room to be used as an imperial space.

For the final we had to work on our own. We were asked to draw a diagram of the site and give our best guess as to how each room or space was used, and constructed.
Needless to say, that was my favorite part of the entire experience. I understood very quickly the plight of any archaeologist, who stumbles upon an unknown site and has to construct as much of a story as possible, to explain what the evidence available could mean.

I am honored to have been the recipient of the Minority Summer Fellowship of 2009, and am grateful to the Officers and Directors of the American Philological Association and the Archaeological Institute of America for having awarded me with the opportunity to make my first experience in Europe a veritable romance with the Ancient Roman world. A special thanks to Dr. Tamara Green, and Dr. Ronnie Ancona at Hunter College-CU-NY, who always inspire me with the desire to improve my knowledge of Classical Studies and Language.

Departmental Membership in the APA

The American Philological Association (APA) invites college and university departments offering programs in classical studies to become departmental members. The APA instituted this category of membership last year as a way of giving recognition to those departments that are willing to support the entire field while they do the essential work of passing on an understanding of classical antiquity to each new generation of students. Departmental members will be listed on the Association's web site, in an issue of the Association's Newsletter, and in a page in the Annual Meeting Program. The APA will issue outstanding achievement awards to students designated by the department. Departmental members will also be able to obtain certain APA publications and other benefits at no charge, and they will support two important international classics projects in which the APA participates: the American Office of l’Année philologique and its fellowship to the Thesaurus Linguae

Laetinae. Departmental dues revenue that exceeds the value of benefits received will be used to support these two projects and will make the APA eligible to receive matching funds from the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) which is currently the major supporter of these two projects.

A form for enrolling a department as a member is available on the APA web site: http://www.apaclassics.org/Administration/Dept_Member_Form.pdf. Departments may select a membership category that corresponds to the highest academic degree that each one offers.
However, departments selecting the higher Supporting or Sustaining categories will enable the Association to claim additional matching funds from the NEH so that the Association can focus its fund-raising efforts on the capital campaign and on unrestricted annual giving. The web site and Program listings of member departments will give appropriate recognition to those selecting the higher levels.

As of October 1, 2009, the following departments are participating in the program for this year.

CALL FOR APPLICATIONS FOR APA-AIA MINORITY SCHOLARSHIP PROGRAM

The Joint Committee on Minority Scholarships of the American Philological Association (APA) and the Archaeological Institute of America (AIA) invites applications from minority undergraduate students for a scholarship to be awarded for Summer 2010. The purpose of the scholarship is to further an undergraduate’s preparation for graduate work in classics or classical archaeology. Eligible proposals might include (but are not limited to) participation in summer programs or field schools in Italy, Greece, Egypt, etc., or language training at institutions in the U.S, Canada, or Europe. The maximum amount of the award will be $3,000.

Candidates will be judged on the basis of (a) their academic qualifications, especially in classics, including demonstrated ability in at least one classical language, or in fields that prepare a student to become an archaeologist, (b) the quality of their proposal for study particularly as preparation for a career in classics or archaeology, and (c) financial need. The application must be supported by a member of the APA or the AIA, and a statement must be included indicating that this is an appropriate candidate for the purposes of this scholarship.

The receipt deadline for applications is December 14, 2009; results will be announced by the end of January 2010. Applications must include (1) a letter describing the applicant’s career goals and plans for summer 2010, with a prioritized list of programs applied to; (2) an undergraduate transcript; (3) two letters of recommendation by faculty members or other professionals who have worked with the applicant during the past two years (at least one must be an APA or AIA member). NOTE: Under the classification “minority” we include African-American, Hispanic-American, Asian-American and Native-American students. Applications should be submitted to the APA Office in Philadelphia at the address below.

For application forms or further information, please go to the Committee’s web page (http://www.apaclassics.org/Administration/Comm/Cmsfront.htm) or contact the Co-Chairs of the Committee for 2009-2010:

Tickets are $10 each or three for $25. Lucky winners will get a bag full of great books generously donated by participating Annual Meeting exhibitors (as listed at the APA and AIA web sites).

http://www.apaclassics.org/Administration/contribution.html

The American Philological Association invites applications for a one-year Fellowship, tenable from July 2010 through June 2011, which will enable an American scholar to participate in the work of the Thesaurus Linguae Latinae Institute in Munich. Fellows at the TLL develop a broadened perspective of the range and complexity of the Latin language and culture from the classical period through the early Middle Ages, contribute signed articles to the Thesaurus, have the opportunity to participate in a collaborative international research project in a collegial environment, and work with senior scholars in the field of Latin lexicography. The Fellowship carries a stipend in the amount of $50,400 and is made possible in part by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities. The incumbent Fellow may re-apply for a second year, but all applications will be judged on an equal footing.

Applicants must (i) be United States citizens or permanent residents and (ii) already have the Ph.D. or anticipate the award of the degree by July 1, 2010. The opportunity to be trained in lexicography and contribute articles to be published in the lexicon may be of special interest to scholars who are already established in tenure-track positions, as well as those who are just entering the profession. The Fellowship offers valuable experience for scholars in a variety of specialties (e.g., Latin language and literature, Roman law, Roman history, the literature of early Christianity); although it is not limited to individuals working in Latin philology, applicants should possess a thorough familiarity with and a special interest in the Latin language, as well as advanced competence in Greek. It is anticipated that applicants will already have a reading knowledge of German and will be willing to work toward proficiency in spoken German. Women and members of minority groups underrepresented in Classics are particularly encouraged to apply.

Applications should include a curriculum vitae, a statement of what benefits the applicant expects to derive from the Fellowship for his/her research and teaching, and the names of three referees, whom the applicant should ask to send supporting letters to the Executive Director without further notice. It will be in the candidate’s interest if at least one letter can specifically address the candidate’s suitability for the Fellowship. Candidates will be considered by the APA’s TLL Fellowship Committee, which serves as the selection committee. The committee will choose a short-list of candidates to be invited for interview at the Annual Meeting in January 2010 in Orange County (Anaheim), California, and the name of the successful candidate will be announced shortly thereafter. Applications must be received by the deadline of Monday, November 16, 2009. Applications must be submitted via regular mail or courier. Materials sent via FAX or e-mail will not be accepted.

Applications should be sent to: Dr. Adam D. Blistein, Executive Director, American Philological Association, 292 Claudia Cohen Hall, University of Pennsylvania, 249 S. 36th Street, Philadelphia, PA 19104-6304. For additional information about the Fellowship, contact the Chairperson of the APA’s TLL Fellowship Committee, Professor Kathleen Coleman, Department of the Classics, Har-

Women’s Classical Caucus Grants for Annual Meeting

Travel Grants. The Women’s Classical Caucus will offer two Travel Grants to members in good standing who need financial assistance to attend the 2010 meetings of the APA/AIA. These grants will be named in honor of Shilpa Raval and Corinne Crawford.

All applicants must have been WCC members in good standing by 15 January 2009 (undergraduate and graduate students) or 15 January 2008 (post-Ph.D. scholars). In evaluating the applications, the WCC may also take into account the applicant’s reasons for attending the APA/AIA (e.g., presentation of a paper or poster; interviewing for jobs; other participation on the APA/AIA program); record of service to the WCC; and receipt of previous grants from the WCC.

Applicants should send Professors Alison Futrell (afutrell@email.arizona.edu) and Susanna Braund (susannablaues@gmail.com) a current CV, a one-page statement outlining the reasons for attending the APA/AIA, and a projected budget. The statement should also include mention of other sources of funding (received and pending). The deadline is December 1, 2009.

Child Care Grants. The Women’s Classical Caucus will again offer a limited number of Child Care Grants to offset some of the cost of childcare at the APA/AIA meetings. WCC members in good standing, including graduate students, are eligible to apply for these grants.

Applicants should e-mail Professor Antony Augoustakis (aaugoust@illinois.edu) with a brief statement. The deadline is December 1, 2009.

The American School of Classical Studies at Athens, one of America’s most distinguished centers devoted to advanced teaching and research, was founded in 1881 to provide American graduate students and scholars a base for their studies in the history and civilization of the Greek world. Today, nearly 130 years later, it is still a teaching institution, providing graduate students a unique opportunity to study firsthand the sites and monuments of Greece. The School is also a superb resource for senior scholars pursuing research in fields ranging from antiquity to modern Greece, thanks to its internationally renowned libraries, the Blegen, dedicated to classical antiquity, and the Gennadius, which concentrates on the Greek world after the end of antiquity.

School programs are generally open to qualified students and scholars at colleges or universities in the U.S. or Canada. The American School of Classical Studies at Athens does not discriminate on the basis of race, age, sex, sexual orientation, color, religion, national or ethnic origin, or disability when considering admission to any form of membership.

For complete descriptions of the various programs and to apply online visit the School’s web site at www.ascsa.edu.gr or write to: ASCSA, 6-8 Charlton Street, Princeton, NJ 08540. Telephone: 609-683-0800. E-mail: ascsa@ascsa.org.

The University of Cincinnati Classics Department is pleased to announce the Margo Tytus Visiting Scholars Program. Tytus Fellows, in the fields of philology, history and archaeology will ordinarily be at least 5 years beyond receipt of the Ph.D. Apart from residence... in Cincinnati during term, the only obligation of Tytus Fellows is to pursue their own research. Fellowships are tenable during the regular academic year (October 1 to June 10). There are two categories of Tytus Fellowships, long-term and short-term. Both Long-Term and Short-Term Fellows will also receive office space and enjoy the use of the University of Cincinnati and Hebrew Union College Libraries. While at Cincinnati Tytus Fellows will be free to pursue their own research.

The University of Cincinnati Burnam Classics Library is one of the world’s premier collections in the field of Classical Studies (http://www.libraries.uc.edu/libraries/classics/). Comprising over 240,000 volumes, the library covers all aspects of the Classics: the languages and literatures, history, civilization, art, and archaeology. Of special value for scholars is both the richness of the collection and its accessibility -- almost any avenue of research in the classics can be pursued deeply and broadly under a single roof. The unusually comprehensive core collection, which is maintained by three professional classicist librarians, is augmented by several special collections such as 15,000 nineteenth century German Programmschriften, extensive holdings in Palaeography, Byzantine and Modern Greek Studies. At neighboring Hebrew Union College, the Klau Library, with holdings in excess of 450,000 volumes, is rich in Judaica and Near Eastern Studies. A complete description of the Tytus Program and an application form is available online at http://classics.uc.edu/index.php/tytus. Questions can be directed to program.coordinator@classics.uc.edu. Application Deadline: January 15, 2010.

The Hill Museum & Manuscript Library in Collegeville, MN, offers Heckman Research Stipends to graduate students or scholars who are within three years of completing a terminal master’s or doctoral degree. The stipends will fund research in the Library for periods ranging from two weeks to six months. Stipends are variable up to $2,000.

The Hill Museum & Manuscript Library houses extensive resources for the study of medieval, early modern, and eastern Christian manuscripts and archives. Almost 100,000 manuscripts are available on microfilm and in digital format. Consult the Library’s web site (www.hmml.org) for further information, including a partial electronic inventory of its collections and a growing database of manuscript and book images.

Local Information

Orange County is a world-class visitor destination and is the center of Southern California fun, located between Los Angeles and San Diego. The City of Anaheim is the 2nd largest in Orange County and the 10th largest city in...
California. Anaheim serves as a central hub to many area attractions, making it the perfect starting point for your OC adventures.

You’ll find plenty of things to see and do: inviting beaches, unparalleled shopping and entertainment, trendy restaurants, exciting nightlife, championship golf, lively art districts, beautiful historic landmarks and the ultimate family attractions. Warm sunshine, swaying palm trees and breathtaking ocean views create a relaxed lifestyle where shorts, sandals and sunglasses are always in season.

Anaheim Highlights

To many people, “Anaheim” is synonymous with “Disneyland®”; while it’s true that the theme park is a block away from the meeting hotels, it is also quite possible to spend a fun-filled week in the city without ever stepping foot onto Disney property! Many attendees are choosing to bring their families and extend their stay beyond the conference dates so that they can combine the Meeting with a family vacation. For those who would like to bring the kids along and visit “the Happiest Place on Earth”, the Annual Meeting offers a great opportunity to visit Disneyland® at a time of year when the park is typically less crowded. Disneyland® is offering specially-priced tickets for meeting attendees and their families: visit the AIA/APA Ticket Store at http://www.disneyconventionear.com/ZMAA111 before January 4 to purchase these discounted advance sale tickets.

If theme parks are not your cup of tea, Anaheim offers a number of other attractions from shopping and museums to dining and entertainment:

The Shops at Anaheim GardenWalk: just a short walk from the meeting hotels, the GardenWalk offers outdoor shopping, dining, and entertainment among cascading waterfalls and beautifully landscaped gardens. The GardenWalk is also known as a nighttime destination: Pop the Cork Wine Bar features 40 to 50 wines available by the taste, flight and glass and 150 wines available by the bottle, as well as a small plate menu. Heat Ultra Lounge is a Vegas-style nightclub offering exotic cocktails and dancing in a unique 11,000 square foot setting.

Downtown Disney® District: located just outside of the theme parks, the Downtown Disney® District is a lively promenade featuring unique shopping and dining, as well as exciting nighttime entertainment. Ralph Brennan’s Jazz Kitchen is a one-of-a-kind, independent restaurant offering a savvy representation of New Orleans’ dual legacies – food and music – served up in a whimsical setting depicting the charm, ambience and hospitality of historic and contemporary New Orleans. House of Blues Anaheim is a premier concert venue that also offers unique dining options like the daily Gospel Brunch. Uva Bar features a magnificent circular bar, a nod to both Paris metro-station architecture and the streamlined aesthetic of the 1920’s Jazz Age.

The Muzeo: known as “the museum of celebration and understanding”, Muzeo is Southern California’s newest museum and home to world-class traveling exhibitions. Featuring a unique variety of exhibits, special events, lectures, classes and weekend festivals, Muzeo will be hosting the Treasures of Napoleon exhibition tour over the dates of the Annual Meeting.

Honda Center: Home to the Anaheim Ducks (California’s only Stanley Cup champions), the Honda Center is widely respected as a premier sports and concert venue. NHL fans might like to see the Ducks square off against the Detroit Red Wings on January 5 or the St. Louis Blues on January 7.

Orange County (O.C.) at large offers many options for culture and leisure activities within short driving distance, including some of the finest restaurants and wineries in the country as well as great shopping and nightlife. Below are several highlights of OC’s offerings: for more detailed information, please visit the Anaheim/Orange County Visitor and Convention Bureau’s website specifically set up for the Annual Meeting at http://anaheimoc.org/microsites/sites/APAAIA.asp.

Orange County Highlights

The Bowers Museum is a world-class, internationally-celebrated institution of art and culture dedicated to the preservation, study and exhibition of arts from around the world. Located in nearby Santa Ana, Bowers will play host to this year’s Opening Night Reception. It is also open Tuesday through Sunday from 10:00am to 4:00pm.

Beaches: Orange County has 42 miles of beautiful coastline. Six beach cities with equally picturesque ocean views, yet distinctive viewpoints on coastal living, line this spectacular stretch of the Pacific Coast. From Seal Beach in the north to San Clemente in the south, each city offers a distinct culture of its own.

Golfing opportunities are abundant: World-famous golf champion Tiger Woods perfected his swing while growing up in Orange County, and today the area boasts more than 40 championship courses and is recognized as “California’s Golf Coast.” Visitors can enjoy putting for par at one of the serene coastal links or taking a swing in the rolling foothills of inland OC.

The Orange County Performing Arts Center is the artistic home to the region’s major performing arts organizations: Pacific Symphony, the Philharmonic Society of Orange County and the Pacific Chorale. The Pacific Symphony will perform A Tchaikovsky Portrait January 7-9, 2010.

Mission San Juan Capistrano, founded in 1776, is the 7th among the 21 California missions and houses the Serra Chapel, California’s oldest building still in use. Today it is a monument to California’s multi-cultural history, embracing its Native American, Spanish, Mexican and European heritage. Originally built as a self sufficient community by Spanish Padres and Indians, the Mission was a center for agriculture, industry, education and religion. Enjoy the lush gardens, museum rooms, adobe buildings, ruins, and koi-filled fountains at Orange County’s number one historic site.

The Aquarium of the Pacific, located in nearby Long Beach, is Southern California’s largest aquarium and the fifth largest in the nation. With 1.4 million annual visitors, the Aquarium of the Pacific is also the third largest cultural attraction in the Los Angeles area. The Aquarium features more than 12,000 marine animals representing three distinct areas of the Pacific Ocean.

Known by locals as “the anti-mall”, the LAB (acronym for Little American Businesses) in Costa Mesa stands out among countless shopping destinations for its eclectic array of unique shops and restaurants as well as weekly cultural events.

Other Southern California Highlights

Just 34 miles North of Anaheim, Los Angeles is easily accessible by car or train and offers endless cultural and leisure opportunities from the glamour of Hollywood to the burgeoning downtown area. For more information on visiting LA, see http://discoverlosangeles.com/.

San Diego, approximately 90 miles south of Anaheim, is renowned for its idyllic climate, 70 miles of pristine beaches, and a dazzling array of world-class family attractions. For more information on San Diego, visit http://www.sandiego.org.

American Philological Association encouraged to make their reservations early; tickets may not be available at the meeting.

Wednesday, January 6

Opening Night Reception. This year’s Opening Night Reception will be at the Bowers Museum in Santa Ana. Join hundreds of meeting participants for a private, after hours viewing of this world-class museum while enjoying a fine glass of wine in one of the many galleries opened exclusively for the AIA and APA Joint Annual Meeting attendees.

The event will be held on Wednesday, January 6, 2010, from 7:00pm to 9:00pm. Complimentary shuttle service between the Museum and the meeting hotels will be provided to all ticket-holders. Purchase Opening Night Reception tickets when you register for the 2010 Joint Annual Meeting. Tickets are $24 for students and $34 for all other meeting registrants.

The APA/AIA Joint Committee on Placement has once again organized the first session for this year’s Program, entitled, “The University and Beyond: Careers for Classicists.” This year’s panel will focus on the variety of careers pursued by those with doctorates in Classics. Given the tough economy and the shrinking number of traditional tenure–track positions available, the Committee encourages graduate students to “think outside the box” even as they work toward their goal of life in academia. To this end, panelists will address professional avenues such as tenure–track jobs in classics, high school Latin teaching, library science, administration, and opportunities for classicists on–line. After the panelist presentations there will be time for discussion among panelists and audience.

Thursday, January 7

Presidential Panel. President Josiah Ober has organized a session entitled “Classical Antiquity and Social Science”. The panel will take place from 4:30pm to 6:30pm.

Friday, January 8

Joint APA/AIA Roundtable Discussion Session. The Roundtable Discussions have continued to be well attended, and together with the AIA, the APA Program Committee is pleased to present new topics this year at midday (11:30am to 1:00pm). Members of both societies will lead separate discussions at individual tables. Topics will include issues of intellectual and practical importance to classicists and archaeologists. Sign-up sheets will be available in advance of the session so that participation at each table can be limited to a number that will encourage useful dialogues. A cash food service will be available nearby.

APA Plenary Session. As usual, the plenary session will feature the presentation of APA’s teaching awards, the Outreach Prize, and the Goodwin Award of Merit. The title of Josiah Ober’s Presidential Address will be “Wealthy Hellas.”

APA Presidential Reception. The Board of Directors cordially invites all APA members attending the 141st Annual Meeting to a reception honoring President Josiah Ober on Friday, January 8, immediately after the Plenary Session and Presidential Address. To conserve financial resources during the current economic downturn, the Board has decided to limit food service at this year’s Reception and to offer only a cash bar. The Board encourages all members to attend the reception and meet those colleagues they may not have seen earlier in the meeting.

Greece and Rome in Silent Cinema: A Screening of Silent Films with Piano Accompaniment (Sponsored by the Committee on Ancient and Modern Performance). In the first four decades of cinema, hundreds of films were made which drew their inspiration from the ancient Mediterranean. With the exception of a handful of silent films which have been restored and released on DVD and a few more which have been screened in film festivals, the films in question are largely forgotten. Ranging from historical and mythological epics to adaptations of Greek drama, burlesques, animated cartoons and documentaries, these films suggest a preoccupation with the ancient world which competes in intensity and breadth with that of Hollywood’s classical era. The event will provide a small sample of these films, drawn from the collections of the British Film Institute National Archive, and will be accompanied by an improvised piano performance. The screening in the evening of Friday, January 8, will complement the CAMP panel to be held midday on Saturday, January 9.

Saturday, January 9

Minority Student Scholarship Fund-Raising Raffle. The Joint APA/AIA Committee on Scholarships for Minority Students asks for your support of this important program by purchasing tickets for and attending this year’s fund-raising raffle at the Joint Annual Meeting. In the interest of devoting as much of our donation total to summer scholarships as possible, the Committee has decided to forgo the traditional breakfast, thereby realizing a considerable savings. The raffle of books and book certificates will take place this year immediately prior to the opening of the Exhibition Hall on Saturday, January 9. Tickets for the raffle are $10 each or three for $25 and can be purchased at the time of advance registration or at the meeting in the Exhibition Hall on Saturday, January 9. Tickets are $24 for students and $34 for all other meeting registrants.
RegistraUon Area. You do not need to be present at the event to win the raffle.

Business Meeting of the Association. All APA members are encouraged to attend this session which - after the transaction of a small amount of necessary business - will be devoted to questions and comments from members. The Executive Director’s report will be published in advance of the annual meeting. The meeting will take place from 11:00am to 11:30am.

Tenth Annual AIA Archaeology Fair. This AIA annual tradition continues with a whole weekend of family fun! On Saturday, January 9th and Sunday, January 10th, the Archaeology Fair will be held at the Ocean Institute in Dana Point. Still free of charge, the fair will be bigger and better than ever. Located at one of California’s leading institutes in underwater archaeology and marine education, the fair will also feature some of California’s leading museums, including the Natural History Museum of LA County, the San Diego Archaeological Center, Heritage Education Programs and many more! Come stop by, say hello to Roman Legio XI, and support archaeological education!

Several tours of Orange County will be offered during the meeting. Complete information including schedule, pricing, and length of tours will be listed on the APA website in October.

The APA’s Gatekeeper to Gateway Campaign will establish an Endowment for Classics Research and Teaching and obtain the gifts necessary to receive $650,000 offered in an NEH Challenge Grant. The Association is undertaking this Campaign to ensure that its members will have the scholarly and pedagogical resources they need to do their work for decades to come. The Campaign also shares with a wider public the excitement and commitment that APA members have for their subjects.

- The Association has received close to $1.5 million in pledges from nearly 400 donors and has claimed $460,000 of the $650,000 available from the NEH Challenge Grant.

- In recent months the governing boards of the Classical Association of the Middle West and South, the Classical Association of the Pacific Northwest, and the Classical Association of the Atlantic States have agreed to make contributions to the campaign. We very much appreciate this demonstration of support from our colleagues in the field.
